of the Northern Light was killed, by an Indian, Sango by name. One Fitzgerald of the Steam. Jeanette was shot in the region of the abdomen and was brought in on a sled. Three men belonging to Steam. Beluga were brought back all right, Burke, Patay, O'Dority, and Tavench.
Fischer of the Northern Light and one of Steam. Belvedere Joe, Inuits were also brought in. Three of them were not in the fight as they had gone farther inland to look for Togo and and Nowarver and the other two escaped to the hills. They had stopped three sleds and stolen most of the dogs and also guns and ammunition. Messrs. Hoffman and Howland came in, looked, and what they did not want had destroyed. They admitted that they had not received any treatment but what they deserved.

I took the deposition of the wounded man this forenoon. Also was a witness and interpreted the Indian Sango's deposition Kennedy fired three shots at him before he returned his fire. The first shot he fired broke his leg the second killed him and afterwards put other shots into his body. He was rolled up in canvass and put on a rack and left there. The Indian Sango said that Kennedy's shots came very close to him the last one he could feel the wind of as it passed his head. After his leg was broken he fired three shots at him while in a sitting position. The depositions of some of the others was taken this P.M. this P.M. I took the bandages off of the wounded man. Found the bullet hole near the shine and about half way between the lower ribs and the Pelvis Bone. the outside hole covered by a dirty scab. His clothes showed very little hemorage. The bandage being perfectly dry and only two or three any blood stains. Did not seem to be suffering any but could not roll over or move his legs but very little without assistance. Showed some signs of fever Drank lots of water and pulse up to 100. His privates were drown up nearly out of sight and had quite hard work to pass his water, but not much appetite. Had no reason to complain of his treatment and thought that he got no more than he deserved. The Reports of the various participants say that things were quite lively around there for a while, although some of the men they did not catch till nearly night. and the fight came off about 8 o'clock in the morning. They brought back everything they had with them except one Rifle, and one shotgun which one of the other five have, 5 Rifles & shotguns were all the guns that the runaways had.

That is Love.

Whales! Whales, is the Sailors cry Whales! Whales, it will be by and by.
Boarding Masters; O they will try To Shanghai all they can away
O! for the love, the love of advance
That they will, they will go through Boarding Bristol Lips in the Harbours
And stealing away half the crew.

Boarding Masters with their pleasant smiles Tell poor Jack of whales and their fine times Playing Cards and Base Ball half their time
That is fine! That is fine.

2

Captains they come marching down Ships half the Hayseeds in the town Advances you'll get but no cash down.
What do you think of hands like that O! for a term of 5 years you must go Right into the Arctic amongst the snow Chasing after whales, half the time Ye O.
& what a happy time we'll have.

Captains they are principally swearing half the time
Poor Jack busting whalebone & cleaning up slime.
Swearing and growling half their time
That is fine! That is fine.

Whaling grounds we arrive at last.
Plenty of whales are a thing of the past
One or two you may get at last After having stayed away for years
O! for the mighty Almighty Dollar With it many things we do go through.
Breaking ice and sawing up timber
Such a mean thing we have to do.

If we when we arrive in 'Frisco town
You'll be both broke, except the Dollar they put down.
Then you can ship to go the world around That is love! That is love.

September. 1894

Sometime Shortly after the man was frozen, the Dr - told me that an amputation would certainly be required, and upon my asking if he was going to perform it he told me he had not had any experience with frozen limbs or cases, and was going to get Capt Tilton of the Newport to do it for him, as the Tilton had had considerable experience in such cases.
